

U.S. planes bomb village by mistake

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American warplanes mistakenly dumped tons of bombs on the Cambodian town of Neak Luong Monday, blasting much of the Mekong River port into rubble and killing or wounding hundreds in the worst accidental air strike of the Indochina war.

Cambodian Air Force officers estimated total dead and wounded in the thunderous predawn bombing, which caught most of the town's residents in bed, at between 300 and 700 civilians and soldiers.

One officer who took part in rescue operations said it was too early to accurately break down casualties, but he estimated the toll might eventually run as high as 100 dead and 600 wounded.

The tragedy took place 10 days before the scheduled end to U.S. bombing raids in Cambodia and amid court attempts to halt the operations immediately.

"I was asleep when the noise of the planes woke me," said Poch Thong, 35, lying on a cot alongside her husband and three children in a Phnom Penh hospital. "I didn't see the planes, I didn't know what happened."

There were conflicting reports about the number and type of U.S. aircraft involved in the bombing. One of the victims said four F111 fighter-bombers took part in the mistaken air strike, but the Pentagon claimed one big B52 bomber dropped part of its payload "short of the intended target."

The wounded told newsmen the air strike flattened Neak Luong's town hall, hospital, army base, navy outpost and scores of houses.

A Cambodian Air Force officer who helped evacuate the victims said he counted at least 50 dead sprawled around the battered ferry town and estimated another 50 buried in the rubble. Other rescue workers calculated the wounded at from 300 to 600.

More than 200 of the wounded civilians and soldiers were taken by helicopters and boats to nine hospitals in Phnom Penh, 32 miles northwest of the destroyed town.

The river boats, packed with bandaged women and children crying for help, were still arriving in the capital Monday night, a half-day after the bombing.

"I heard the noise of the planes, but I didn't pay attention," one of the victims said after arriving by boat. "Suddenly explosions broke my ears."

There were so many patients at the Khmer Russian Hospital, built by the Soviet Union, that the wounded were lined up in corridors to wait their turns in the operating room.

At one time, four surgeons at the hospital were working over a single victim, removing bomb fragments from his leg.

Another victim waited for his turn in the operating room, squirming in agony as a nurse tried to dress his leg wound.

A third victim, an elderly man with a head wound, lay on the floor of the hospital corridor with a vacant stare in his eyes.

"If we had only known this ahead of time," one of the victims said. "If we had known, the bombs could not have caused so many dead and wounded. We know that all American planes in Cambodia are supposed to bomb only the Communists."

U.S. Atty. probing Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Attorney's office in Baltimore has formally notified Vice President Spiro T. Agnew that he is under investigation for bribery, extortion and tax fraud, the Wall Street Journal reported Monday.

The newspaper said the allegations stemmed from Agnew's award of Maryland state contracts during his tenure as governor of the state in 1967 and 1968 and "of federal contracts in Maryland let by the General Services Administration since Mr. Agnew became the vice president in January, 1969."

Agnew's office in Washington issued a statement saying he acknowledged receiving notification the investigation was under way "for possible violation of the criminal statutes."

"I will make no further comment until the investigation has been completed, other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have complete confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed," the vice president said.

The Journal said the probe "isn't related to the Watergate scandal."

In Washington, the Justice Department refused to answer any questions about the investigation. Horace Webb, a department spokesman, said he had been asked by Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson "to refrain from making any comments."

The Wall Street Journal said the letter to Agnew was "cleared at the top" by Richardson. It said that upon receiving the notice, Agnew sought a White House audience, presumably to inform President Nixon.

The newspaper said although

Agnew is under investigation it does not necessarily mean he will be indicted. It said the prosecutors had not yet presented the evidence they have been gathering to a grand jury meeting in Baltimore.

"Still knowledgeable attorneys emphasize the significance of the notification of Mr. Agnew," the Journal commented. "There is a natural reluctance to commit yourself in writing. The higher the target the more persuasive the evidence must be before a letter goes out."

The probe started last January and at first dealt with reports of kickbacks and payoffs by contractors, consulting engineers and architects to current office holders in Baltimore County, the newspaper said.

This probe was broadened in recent months to embrace eight state contracts awarded during Agnew's two years as governor, the Journal said, adding that it also has included a U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) contract awarded in Maryland since Agnew became vice president.

The Journal pointed out that information equivalent to an indictment was brought in June against William E. Fornoff, a Baltimore County official who served briefly under Agnew while Agnew was a county executive and then served Agnew for a longer time when Agnew became governor.

The account said a major development in the investigation was Fornoff's admission in court that he had acted as a conduit for cash payments from contractors to an unidentified county official starting in 1967 after Agnew became governor. Fornoff pleaded guilty to one minor tax charge after agreeing to testify against other persons.

Agnew has avoided scandal in his five years as vice president, although it was disclosed last month that a 1972 fund-raising event on his behalf in Maryland was swollen with secret contributions from the Committee for the Re-Election of the President. Agnew was not personally implicated in any wrongdoing in this incident, and he denied he knew the committee funds had been transferred in which legal officers said were violations of Maryland law.

Airport attack condemned

WASHINGTON — The United States Monday condemned the terrorist attack at the Athens International Airport Sunday in which two Americans were killed as a despicable act presenting a grim reminder that the world must find a way "to prevent such outrages." A State Department spokesman said the incident was "an attack against innocent people by terrorists. In our view it was a despicable action which warrants the strongest condemnation by the world community."

U.S. dollar gains ground

LONDON — The U.S. dollar climbed to a three-week high against the West German mark Monday and gained against other European currencies, particularly the British pound. British dealers attributed the dollar's continued recovery to the increase in U.S. bank interest rates for prime business loans.

Food companies under fire

WASHINGTON — Charging that the concentrated power of giant food corporations is producing inflated industry profits at the expense of both farmers and consumers, a citizens' lobby Monday launched a drive to reduce food prices by persuading the government to break up big food conglomerates. Organizers of the campaign said they planned a six-to-eight week nationwide effort to spark public demand for action against concentration in the food industry.

Shapp asks to testify

HARRISBURG — Gov. Milton Shapp Monday asked the House Liquor Committee to call him as a witness in its investigation of charges that politics have swamped Liquor Control Board activity. Attorney General Israel Packel, and Shapp assistants Ralph Tive and Norval Reece also will ask to be heard, according to Shapp.

Quake hits California coast

OXNARD — A rolling earthquake centered on the ocean floor 20 miles off the Southern California coast jolted a wide area Monday but caused no serious damage. The quake started at 4:29 p.m. and lasted for about 30 seconds, swaying buildings in the counties of Ventura, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles and Orange. The quake registered 4.75 on the Richter scale of magnitude and was centered near Anacapa Island, 20 miles southwest of Oxnard.

Ad guidelines demanded

WASHINGTON — Chairman Lewis A. Engman of the Federal Trade Commission warned broadcasters and advertisers Monday they will be "circumscribed by legal restrictions and requirements" unless they draft voluntary guidelines for television commercials directed at children. The first of a series of meetings to draft such guidelines has been scheduled tentatively later this week. It will include representatives of broadcasting, advertising, consumer groups and governments.

Bishops back parochial schools

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's Roman Catholic bishops promised Monday to give the highest priority to Catholic schools despite a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling cutting state aid. In a statement released here by the Pennsylvania Catholic Conference.

Bombing halt asked again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Their case dramatized by an errant U.S. bombing run that killed hundreds of civilians, lawyers for a New York congressman returned to the Supreme Court Monday in another effort to win an immediate halt of the bombing in Cambodia.

Attorneys representing Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and four Air Force officers filed a motion asking Justice Thurgood Marshall to refer the matter to the entire nine-man court instead of deciding it himself. They also asked him to lift a stay he imposed on an anti-bombing order obtained from Justice William O. Douglas.

There was no immediate indication what action the court would take, if any. The court is in the middle of a summer recess.

The Congress recently passed a measure ordering a halt in the Cambodian bombing Aug. 15 and President Nixon has promised to abide by that deadline.

Holtzman said Marshall violated the Supreme Court's own rules Saturday when he issued the stay — only six hours after Douglas ordered a halt to the bombing.

Ex-Cuban dictator, 72

Batista dies of heart attack

MARBELLA, Spain (UPI) — Fulgencio Batista, strong man of Cuba directly and indirectly for two decades before Fidel Castro overthrew him in 1959, died of a "peaceful death" Monday in a golf resort on the Costa del Sol, his family said.

Ruben Batista, one of his five surviving sons, said the ex-dictator, 72, died in his bed at 3 a.m. (10 p. m. EDT, Sunday) "of an apparent heart attack" and will be buried in Madrid today.

"It was a peaceful death," Ruben said of the man who to some was the epitome of the Latin American right-wing military strongman and to others a benevolent despot.

"Papa complained about feeling ill after a late Sunday dinner...It appears he died suddenly and without feeling any pain," Ruben said.

Batista will be buried in a family plot

Gray warned Nixon of aides' conduct

WASHINGTON (UPI) — L. Patrick Gray III testified Monday that he alerted President Nixon three weeks after Watergate of possibly illegal conduct of White House aides. But, the former acting FBI chief added, his efforts to expand the FBI probe into "political activity" originally were blocked by superiors.

In the strongest direct testimony against the President since John W. Dean III left the witness chair, Gray also told the Senate Watergate committee he believed that two Nixon aides were "acting for the President" when they ordered him to destroy Watergate-related files just 11 days after the June 17, 1972, bugging arrests.

Gray said that in a conversation on July 6, 1972, he gave the President a warning that was "adequate to put him on notice" that his aides — Dean and John D. Ehrlichman — were involved in improper and possibly illegal activities. When Nixon did not ask him to elaborate, he said, he thought maybe he was being an alarmist.

Nonetheless, Gray said, Assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, then in charge of the Watergate case in the Justice Department, once vetoed a suggestion that the FBI expand its investigation into so-called political "dirty tricks" allegedly conducted by Donald H. Segretti and others on behalf of President Nixon's re-election campaign.

"The scope of this investigation...was determined by the Department of Justice," Gray said. "I think I can say that without fear of contradiction because there is documentary evidence before this committee of my efforts in October to include political activity within the scope of this investigation. "There is also documentary evidence before this committee of my attempts again in December to include political activity within the scope of this investigation."

He said Petersen in October "did not feel there was sufficient, factual evidence on which to go into that area," but the investigation finally did get underway in December.

Petersen was expected to testify before the committee later in the week. Richard G. Kehlndienst, who was attorney general at the time, was scheduled to go before the committee today. He was to be followed by Petersen.

Problem-plagued Skylab given new lease on life

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts raised a garage-sized sun shade over their orbiting research lab in the longest spacewalk ever Monday as ground engineers decided plumbing problems no longer threatened the future of America's first space station.

The spacewalkers found no signs of a cooling system leak outside the ship. Engineers said the problem was not as serious as first believed and gave Skylab a new lease on life for the rest of the $2.6 billion project.

Like repairmen on power poles, rookie astronauts Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma ran up a 22-by-24-foot silver and white shade, flagpole style, to protect Skylab from the searing sun. Commander Alan L. Bean, fourth man on the station's airlock monitoring vital systems.

"It was extremely careful, meticulous and it was perfect," ground communicator Story Musgrave said later.

"They got everything done. We didn't want them to hurry and they never planned to hurry. They ran into on-the-job training with the shade but I think the performance was perfect."

Garriott and Lousma put in nearly a full day's work outside the station, eclipsing the previous spacewalk record of 3 hours, 28 minutes set last June by the Skylab 1 crew in freeing a jammed solar power wing.

Bean said the walk, which began at 1:32 p.m. EDT, lasted 6 hours, 31 minutes. Flight controllers said the time probably would be refined after a further data check.

Musgrave said the astronauts looked for scorching on the outer skin of Skylab from burned-out wiring leading the solar observatory, but found nothing. They also checked on steering rockets that crippled their Apollo ferry ship.

Musgrave said the big awning apparently was in place, although the astronauts said they had wrinkles in the nylon fabric when they took it out of the storage bag.

"I have faith it's deployed the way it ought to be," Musgrave said, adding that temperatures already were cooling inside the space ship's orbital workshop and living area.

$9.9 million spent on Nixon homes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government agencies, acting under presidential orders, disclosed Monday that $9.9 million had been spent over the past four years to protect President Nixon and his family at facilities outside Washington.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said the information was being released by the General Services Administration (GSA), the Defense Department and the Secret Service on Nixon's orders to dispel the notion that the expenditures had increased the value of the President's property at taxpayer expense.

He also said Nixon had invited representatives of House and Senate committees investigating the expenditures to visit his properties at Key Biscayne, Fla. and San Clemente, Calif. and "see for themselves the work that has been done."

According to the figures, the armed forces spent $5.9 million, primarily for communications, at the President's favorite vacation haunts; the Secret Service spent "less than $300,000", mostly for security devices at the homes of the President's daughters, and the GSA spent $3.7 million to provide office space and security-related outlays.

Of this amount, the military expects to be able to recover $640,000 in reusable equipment, the Secret Service expects to recover all of its approximately $300,000 outlay and the GSA had no estimate of what was recoverable.

Arthur F. Sampson, the GSA head, justified the approximately $635,000 spent on the grounds around the Nixon's California home as necessary for security.

The report covered, in addition to the Nixon homes in California and Florida, Grand Cay Island in the Bahamas, owned by Nixon's friend Robert H. Abplanalp and frequently used by the Nixon family.

Reverses earlier denial

LCB official admits removing files

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Liquor Control Board (LCB) chairman Gene Roscioli admitted Monday he lied when he denied he took the files of former LCB Counsel Alex Jaffurs.

At a hastily called news conference, LCB spokesman Terry Eisenberg said Roscioli has had some of Jaffurs' files for a week and that he took them home Sunday to "review and organize them."

Eisenberg showed the contents to newsmen. They contained what appeared to be testimony to state police by LCB employees about gift liquor and documents about Henry Sklar, an LCB hearing examiner Jaffurs wanted fired.

Roscioli was not available for comment, but Eisenberg said the LCB chairman took the files last week because he wanted to protect them.

"They suggest wrong doing and there are some people who would not want them to see the light of day," Eisenberg said. He would not say what "people" he was talking about.

The incident was another bizarre twist to the dispute over the files.

Jaffurs told the House Liquor Control Committee last week the files would help document his charges of attempts of political influence on the LCB.

House Republicans, saying they feared the documents would be tampered with, had a 24-hour state police guard put outside Jaffurs' 4th floor office over the weekend.

One floor up, Roscioli had some of the files the police were supposed to be guarding.

The House committee subpoenaed the files Monday. Eisenberg said all the documents would be delivered to the committee.

Roscioli, in a statement, denied that he tampered with the files. Although he admitted he lied about taking the files, he said.

When contacted by reporters, Roscioli and Eisenberg denied they had files. They said they were carrying legal note pads and Sunday newspapers.

Beef supplies dwindle

United Press International

Beef supplies dwindled Monday in stores and restaurants across the country with more than five more weeks of government price ceilings to go. Prices on other meats, unfrozen by Phase IV last month, skyrocketed.

Some supermarkets reported they were completely cleaned out of beef. Many packing plants remained closed, their operators insisting they could not operate on what they could sell beef for under the freeze. New Yorkers were advised to quit buying beef entirely.

One steak restaurant offered a "Nixon Special"—a grilled cheese sandwich and a bowl of soup.

Meanwhile other food prices kept up a steady climb 19 days after Phase IV lifted the price freeze on foods except beef. Chicken prices had increased by 40 per cent in some cities—with uncut fryer chicken selling for 99 cents a pound in New York City and Columbus, Ohio. Grade AA eggs cost 97 cents a dozen in Pittsburgh and Chicago, up about 45 per cent from pre-Phase IV levels.

On the wholesale scene, wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday soared over the $4 a bushel mark for the first time in the market's 150-year history.

Police aid program extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying the program has "done the job" in helping reduce crime, President Nixon signed legislation Monday extending the life of the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) through fiscal 1976.

The $3.2 billion in federal funds over the next three years will assist states and localities in shoring up their law enforcement operations. The new bill also gives states more flexibility in spending the funds and guarantees a larger federal commitment.

"This is a program we're all proud of and it's done the job," Nixon said after signing the measure at a White House ceremony. "This provides the opportunity and the money, everything we need."

He pointed out that 1972 was the first time in the last 15 years there has been a decline in the national crime rate. He said the rate fell 3 per cent.

Under the bill, states will have to put up only 10 per cent matching money to qualify for the federal funds, compared to the old rate of 25 per cent.

It allocates $1 billion for eligible programs in this fiscal year and in fiscal 1975, and $1.25 billion in fiscal 1976.

Increased truce violations reported in South Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Government troops battled guerrillas in sharp clashes across central South Vietnam in which 70 soldiers on both sides were killed, the South Vietnamese command said Monday. Nine civilians were reported slain and 20 wounded in the fighting.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the command spokesman, reported four battles and two shelling Sunday in the Central Coast province of Quang Ngai, 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

Hien said 21 Communists, six government soldiers and nine South Vietnamese civilians were killed in the fighting. He said 26 government soldiers and 20 civilians were wounded.

In nearby Binh Dinh Province, Communists reportedly fired 80 mortar shells Sunday into a government infantry position 275 miles northeast of Saigon. Four government soldiers were reported killed and four others wounded.

Hien also reported three ground battles and two shelling to the west Sunday in the Central Highlands provinces of Kontum and Pleiku, 245 miles northeast of Saigon, with the guerrillas using big 130 mm field guns in the region for the first time.

He said 33 Communists and six government troops died in the Central Highlands clashes with 17 Saigon soldiers wounded.

The government accused the Communists of 113 truce violations in the 24-hour period ending at noon Monday, one of the highest levels since the Jan. 28 cease-fire was reaffirmed on June 15.

UPI correspondent Kenneth F. Engle reported fighting along Highway 329 in Phuoc Tuy Province, 40 miles east of Saigon, for the third day.

Engle said he tried to go up the road from province capital Ba Ria to the town of Xuyen Moc, but was stopped by fighting.

Training for a fight against death

TANNERSVILLE — A training program offering a more extensive up-dating of emergency medical treatment is being carried out at the Central Pocono Ambulance Building in Tannersville.

Classes are conducted from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m., Monday and Friday.

Twenty-five residents from Stroudsburg to Greentown are participating in the course.

Each have the same thought in mind, "to know exactly the right thing to do in case they have to administer emergency medical treatment."

They are being trained by a team of four dedicated, concerned men whose only purpose is to train them in all aspects of emergency medical treatment.

Tony Minotti, director of the training program, James Dervin, Jesse Williams and Lewis Greenleaf all of Easton and members of the Easton Ambulance Squad have come to Monroe County for the first time offering this course.

But if requests for the program continue at the rate they are now, these men will need more hours to the day and days to the week.

Between these four instructors there is 75 years experience. Minotti has been with the group nearly one year, Dervin and Greenleaf have 30 years experience each and Williams has 15 years.

This is a completely volunteer group whose only interest is to offer the best training possible. They receive no money. The only cost to those participating is $5 to cover the cost of the training manual. This is the same price the instructors buy them for. All other expenses are defrayed by the instructors.

Minotti, Dervin, Williams and Greenleaf were the first non-medical group to receive state approval to give this course and is the only team in the State to travel to areas where requested. Other areas covered are in Allegheny, Northampton, and Lehigh Counties.

"It wasn't easy for us to get state sanction," said Greenleaf.

Each person upon completing of the 90 hours course must pass a state exam of 100 questions in order to receive state certification as an Emergency Medical Technician-Ambulance.

Nine written and practical tests are given during the course and according to the instructors the average grade of the trainees has been 91 per cent. There have been 88 graduates with not one failing.

The course is open to all ages, but a person must be 16 years old to receive certification from the State.

Each of the instructors spends approximately 20 hours weekly at home study to prepare for each chapter in the training program.

Transparencies are shown to give a more detailed picture of injuries and treatment. After each group of transparencies are shown a question and answer session takes place.

Participating in the sessions in Tannersville are State Police, nurses, ambulance corps-men and women, firemen, hospital emergency room attendants and other concerned citizens.

The youngest in the group is 14-year-old Richard Diem of Greentown who is taking the course with his father and mother George and Jane Diem.

Richard all ready has earned his Red Cross first aid certificate and has taken cardiac pulmonary resuscitation training. The family is taking the Emergency Medical Technician course to keep up dated on all phases of treatment. They recently completed a three month course at St. Christophers Hospital in Philadelphia.

Ed Rising of Slateford superintendent of the ambulance at General Hospital of Monroe County said, "It is an excellent course, more people should take it."

Ruth Welfly, a registered nurse from Tannersville and a member of Central Pocono Ambulance Squad said, "this is more than a refresher course for me, things are much different when you have a victim in the ambulance than in a hospital where doctors and quipment is available."

Mildred Kleber of Stroudsburg also member of Central Pocono Squad proudly displayed a patch she earned by completing the course at another session. She has successfully passed her course and is certified by the State. She is attending the Tannersville course for updating.

The patch is quite unique and was designed by Jesse Williams, one of the instructors and is recognized by the state as the official patch of the Emergency Medical Technician.

With the distances of most hospitals from rural areas proper emergency medical treatment is imperative.

LOW BACK PAIN

The sharp, grabbing pain or the dull, continuous ache at the base of the spine are familiar symptoms to many people who are perhaps suffering needlessly with what is generally termed "LOW BACK PAIN". Such symptoms may be due to several factors, one very important factor being mechanical misalignment of the lower lumbar vertebrae and limited motion of the affected vertebrae on its disk beneath. Due to this lack of normal mobility, any motion of the spine, such as sitting, standing, bending or twisting tends to further irritate the already taught and tender fibers. The longer time the muscles remain in spasm and the longer time the nerves remain irritated the worse the discomfort and the more serious could become the results of this nerve pressure, since other tissues and organs receive nerve supply from the spinal nerves.

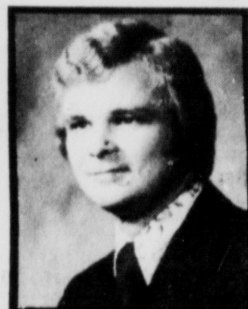

Chiropractic adjustments can put the affected vertebra back into its normal position; thus, eliminating the nerve pressure and reducing muscle spasm. Early Chiropractic attention to such a back condition can save much agonizing discomfort.

Residents win police presence

FERN RIDGE — Residents who fought the proposed moving of two state police units at Fern Ridge have expressed their pleasure to the decision to keep one of the units stationed in the hamlet.

Troopers from Troops N and S were slated to move to a new barracks being built in the Tannersville area early next year.

"We are all extremely pleased over the results of our efforts to keep them here," said local resident Ralph Attarian.

Attarian helped organize a petition that was sent to Gov. Milton Shapp, calling for his intervention to prevent troopers from transferring.

Over 900 signatures were finally gathered on the petition sent to the governor.

"We can understand what the state's problem was—money," Attarian said.

"They were most cooperative in listening to us and realizing the problems that could occur here if they moved all of the police away."

"They have allocated funds for the cultural center at Walter Dam. But they had neglected to make provisions for police. When we brought that out into the open things really got rolling," Attarian said.

"It would be too hectic to take the station away from here," he added.

"We need the police here desperately," said Mrs. Peter Komoshick, one of the organizers to keep the station in Fern Ridge.

She said residents and officials would have another meeting during the first week in September to decide if a new location in the Fern Ridge area for the station could be found.

Pennsylvania getting jealous?

Is Pennsylvania's government trying to ape that of the United States?

Back when Watergate was just beginning to make big news, Pennsylvanians were treated to their very own mini-Watergate. A band of State Police undercover troopers, it seems, had been bugging a group of their fellow officers.

The revelation of this odd activity resulted in the precipitous departure from the law enforcement scene of the then-commissioner of state police, Rocco Urella, and of Attorney General J. Shane Creamer. And, of course, the whole business went to court and is still being litigated.

Meanwhile, back in Washington, the Watergaters came up with a new angle — the White House tapes and related presidential documents. Possession of these items, it was felt, would insure more information on the murky bugging affair. And so subpoenas were issued and that particular battle is getting ready to go to court.

Not to be outdone, a group of Commonwealth legislators decided that, if they were to get to the bottom of charges of undue political pressure by the administration on the Liquor Control Board, they needed certain documents reposing in an LCB safe or two.

Requests for such information were made and refused, so this weekend, subpoenas were issued. And now that battle is headed for the courts (unless someone at the LCB or in the governor's office backs down before you read this).

If all this weren't so sad, it would be funny.

Guest editorial

Press under attack

Even as the journalism fraternity is congratulating itself on its exposure of the Watergate mess and the administration is, to put it mildly, on the defensive because of it, comes a warning that government activities continue to threaten freedom of the press, in the wildest meaning of the term.

Government measures attacking the economic capability of the television networks are just as much a threat to journalistic freedom as efforts to stifle free expression, says Robert W. Sarnoff, chairman of RCA.

And "an attack on one news medium," he warns, "is an attack on all."

In his own medium, he told a recent NBC Television Network Affiliates convention in Los Angeles, the attack is in the form of attempts to weaken the economic structure of networking under the pretext of "localism" which, he says, could impede the flow of independent information to the people.

In noncommercial television, he says, we have been witnessing another variation. There, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, controlled directly by government appointees, has been dismantling national news and public affairs programming.

As for the broader threat to journalistic freedom, Sarnoff cites the "unprecedented spectacle" of high federal officials attacking the national news media in general, the increasingly common device of subjecting investigative reporters to subpoenas and the threat of jail sentences and the use of official secrecy as a cloak for official mistakes and derelictions.

"Whichever of these different means of suppression is employed, the effect is to deprive the public of what it needs to know in a free society," he says.

"What the government wants is a tamed press," alleges Sarnoff, and its efforts to make the news media docile and accommodating rely heavily on the technique of intimidation."

But he adds, "This technique works only against those who are willing to be timid."

New Berkeley scandal

It is the very essence of academic freedom, and indeed of science itself, that any and all subjects are open to competent investigation. Yet Berkeley Chancellor Albert H. Bowker has issued a new policy directive that would drastically curtail the scope of scientific investigation.

Purporting to protect the "human subjects" of scientific investigation from harm, whether physical, psychological or sociological, the document was obviously designed to inhibit Jensen-type research into the relationship between race and intelligence. Such an assault upon the principle of free inquiry would be bad enough, but the language of the directive seems to rule out any research that would issue in critical conclusions regarding any group, organization, or institution in the society.

Guarding against derogation

Here is the key section on "social risks": "Social risks are related in the main to procedures that may place the reputation or status of a social group or an institution in jeopardy. Procedures designed to measure the characteristics of easily defined subgroups of a culture may entail risk if the qualities measured are ones which have positive or negative value in the eyes of the group. Even when research does not impinge directly on it, a group may be derogated or its reputation injured. Likewise, an institution, such as a church, a university or a prison, must be guarded against derogation, for many people may be affiliated with, or employed by, the institution, and pejorative information about it would injure their reputations and self-esteem. In evaluating social risk an investigator should ask himself how the findings will appear to persons belonging to any identifiable group — or affiliated with an institution — studied and reported upon."

Taken literally, those guidelines would inhibit any reserach likely to issue in negative conclusions about, say, the Mafia. In practice, however, they probably would not be applied that way. It is exceedingly unlikely that a professor would lose his job or his research funds if his work began issuing in "derogation" of the military-industrial complex. In practice, the guidelines would probably be invoked only in the case of such research as Daniel P. Moynihan's work on the breakdown of the negro family, or Arthur R. Jensen's on intelligence.

Moynihan called a racist

Both of these scholars have been vilified for their work. Though Moynihan's conclusions were not seriously challenged, he was libeled as a racist. Jensen has difficulty speaking unmolested on a campus or before a professional group. The Berkeley guidelines add institutional pressures to the already substantial informal constraints on intellectual freedom.

The Berkeley guidelines, of course, are profoundly reactionary. For centuries it was held that Biblical and other sacred matters were outside the area of legitimate scientific and historical investigation. Only after long struggle was this area opened to free inquiry.

What the Berkeley guidelines really represent is another religious inhibition on inquiry, though a different religion is involved this time. To liberalism, the sacred object is the "victim of society," real or fancied. His interests and feelings are to be protected, even at the expense of truth. But the document is an intellectual outrage and an insult to the scholarly community.

Facial neuralgia

I have had attacks of facial neuralgia so painful that I actually scream out.

My husband doesn't believe these attacks can be so painful. He even suggests it's psychological.

Mrs. C. W., Wis.

Dear Mrs. W.:

I am sure the excruciating pain of facial neuralgia, or tic douloureux, is not made any easier by your husband's lack of understanding.

Only those unfortunate enough to suffer this type of neuralgia know how intense and stabbing is the pain. I have known patients who, prior to treatment, lived in constant dread of an attack.

This condition seems to affect women more frequently than men.

It may occur at any age, but usually happens past the age of forty. The exact cause of these episodes of severe pain over the face is not known. Occasionally, the spasm is brought on by simply washing the face or by a movement of the lips while eating or drinking.

The diagnosis of tic douloureux is readily made by the brief, sporadic and intense pain. A number of other conditions must be ruled out to be sure that these paroxysms of pain are not caused by other diseases.

Fortunately, the pain can now be controlled with pain-killing drugs. When these are ineffective, surgery is performed to sever the trigeminal nerve that is responsible.

Alcohol injections of the nerve have, in many instances, been successful.

A relatively new technique, injecting a tiny amount of hot water into the nerve, is being used occasionally to relieve the penetrating facial pains.

This is as good a time as any to clarify the difference between disease which is psychological in origin and the psychological aftermath.

It is an accepted fact that some physical problems can be triggered, or set off, by emotional stress and tensions. Palpitation of the heart, colitis, and asthma are typical of this group.

These same conditions, however, may have organic, or a physical, basis as well as a psychological origin.

Now, the psychosomatic aftermath or "overtone" to disease of any kind must be sympathetically understood if the patient is to get the additional assurance he needs.

There is no bodily condition that is not made worse by fear, anxiety, concern, emotional tension, and stresses.

I had a mild attack of influenza this winter and I haven't been able to get back to full activity without complete exhaustion.

Isn't it unusual for this sense of weakness to continue for such a long time?

Miss S.V., Wis.

Dear Miss V.:

It is surprising how often a relatively mild and insignificant infection can leave a person debilitated for a long time. This is well known to doctors as post-infectious "asthenia," or "weakness."

This sense of fatigue may last for weeks, and represents the body's cry for additional rest. However, your weakness has lasted much longer than the expected period of time. A complete examination and blood count may reveal the cause.

Life will be rich and always pay,

If I will play fair with myself.

Letters to the Editor

Realism of being middle-aged

Editor, The Record:

We hear much about the older generation and the younger generation. But perhaps we should begin to talk about the middle generation. Especially should we who are of this generation honestly evaluate our responsible role in society.

We have an obligation to the old and the young. There is an old adage, "virtue stands in the middle". It is the balance between two extremes. It is not a middle course. Nor is it a compromise with either extreme. It is not too rigid. Nor is it too soft. Real virtue constitutes a beautiful balance.

The middle generation should be the beautiful balance in society, so that the old can experience old age happily, and the young can experience youth hopefully.

The middle generation has had the opportunity of already having enjoyed their youth. It is now a time of life for them when they face up to the discipline demanded of them as they fulfill their role in society, just as the older generation has done before them.

The middle generation should constitute the balance in society because they were reared under the older generation and can thus hold on to what is good of the old. They are also young enough in spirit to be very much part of the new, but wise enough to differentiate between the novel and the real values.

It is then in the mature middle-aged person that the older generation should find comfort in seeing their essential values preserved and continuing to contribute to society. And that the younger generation finds hope, because their vision of necessary change is accepted and listened to.

The pitfall of the older generation can be the clinging to everything that is old and refusing to accept the new. The pitfall of the younger generation can be to throw out everything that is old and want total change. These are the two extremes. It is the middle generation that must sustain a balance.

This is not an easy task. It requires that the middle generation fully accepts its responsible role in society. In psychological terminology, this generation should be the self-actuated generation. They have truly grown up and have reached the age of maturation. They accept responsibility and duty. They know true values from false values. They are able to make responsible decisions when necessary. They can do so in total freedom

Editor, The Record:

I saw a show a while ago about humane societies. It said that every day many animals have to be done away with because there is no room in the shelter to keep them.

Well, there is not much that can be done about it, but are the humane societies doing it humanely? I've heard that they put the animals into a chamber and slowly take the air out. The animals don't know what is happening and get frightened and hysterical.

A better way is when they give the animals an injection, but, of course, it always has to be done the cheapest way.

We people are animals, but we are supposed to be more highly developed. I think we are, but animals have a quality that cannot be reached by anyone. They are loving, happy and loyal. So why can't we give them a decent death?

Palace for postal poobahs

WASHINGTON — The Post Office is struggling so desperately to save money that it has cut back services and is planning to increase first - class postage to 10 cents. But the postal poobahs are sparing no expense to build splendiferous new offices for themselves.

They are moving their headquarters from an old Gothic building to the antiseptic environment of Washington's new L'Enfant Plaza. Postmaster General Ted Klassen's private office has already been installed, replete with a $5,280 pantry, $4,602 hand-woven African drapes that can be pulled by remote control and nearly $6,000 worth of other furnishings.

But Klassen's quarters will look positively tacky compared to the Penthouse that is planned on the eleventh floor. The entire floor will be used for Board of Governors meetings, and it will take a lot of 10 - cent stamps to pay for the fancy fixtures.

The plans call for impressive, hand-carved wooden doors, emblazoned with the seal of the Postal Service, to greet the visitor as he steps off the elevator. It will cost the taxpayers $3,500 just to get past the door.

In the conference room, a gaudy chandelier will hang grandly over the monthly meetings. The cost: $5,718. If the poobahs should get hungry while discussing postal affairs, they won't have to walk down a flight to Klassen's tenth-floor pantry. A kitchen costing $30,000 is planned for the Board of Governors to use once a month.

The palatial plans also call for glass-and-marble-topped tables, 20 conference chairs at $438.42 each, 52 dining chairs at $212.40 each, four settees at $749.43, six lounge chairs at $480 apiece, eight occasional chairs at $305.90 each and two sofas for 1,147.05. The carpeting will run $8,388.50.

Postal authorities assure us the penthouse area will be utilized also for press conferences and VIP visitors. Photo developing facilities are also planned on the eleventh floor. As evidence of their magnanimity, the postal poobahs made their old furniture available for sale to rank-and-file employees at low prices.

from extrinsic pressure or influence, acting courageously and with self confidence. They have respect and reverence for the old and the young and yet are not unduly influenced by either.

A middle-aged person faces one of two pitfalls. The one is that the individual has not yet truly grown up, hanging on to the apron strings of the older generation, and still totally dependent upon the old for decisions. Or the individual may identify totally with the young, and is a big brother or sister, which is never to grow up. Both cases are the results of an authoritarian upbringing.

The former is still submitting to it. The latter is rebelling against it. There are many factors in our present society which has made it difficult for the middle generation to truly be what they should be, which would require a study in itself. How many of the middle generation have sided with the older generation? How many have identified with the younger generation? Time will tell.

But in the meantime, we who are of the middle generation, who are genuinely concerned about what is happening in our society can do some soul searching. If our older generation is to enjoy the last years of their lives in deserving comfort and tranquility, and our young are going to be able to hopefully look forward to the life ahead of them, then much of the responsibility lies with us.

We are not kids any longer nor are we ready for retirement. The older generation need not worry about the outcome. Society will sustain them for the rest of their years despite the present confusion and turmoil. If we of the middle generation face a tragic future, then not only can our children blame us, but we can blame ourselves. Whether we like it or not, we of the middle generation are determining the future of the young and also our own future. There are those of the middle generation who blame either the old or the young for what is happening in society. It is so easy for us to shift the blame.

Let us hope that those of us who are of the middle generation will accept the challenge that is ours and respond to the responsibility involved. It is we who should give security to the older generation, and leadership to the younger generation. It is the middle generation that should be the now generation.

Humane societies really humane?

I do have to give the animal shelters credit. They take care of their animals and the animals always have clean quarters. So let's follow through and give them what they deserve — a happy life and death.

BARBARA MAZURIK

Cresco

Editor's note: Lee Whidden of the SPCA on Animal Farm Road, Stroudsburg, tells us that they use the method you describe of euthanasia, called euthanair. He explains that the animals black out well before they are gone, and that if used properly there is no cruelty. Some shelters, however, have packed too many animals into the chamber, causing the hysteria you describe. Our SPCA never places more than one animal at a time in its euthanair chamber.

FOOTNOTE: Klassen has also been criticized for exorbitant spending on official trips. His entourage paid $560 per night, for instance, for the "Presidential Corridor" at the San Francisco Hilton last April during a regional postal conference. A spokesman said that calling the hotel cost exorbitant was "a gross distortion."

ERVIN'S WHISPERS: One of Sen. Sam Ervin's famous, folksy stories wasn't intended for the ears of the public. He cupped his hand over the microphone as he whispered the yarn to Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., during the Watergate hearings.

Ex-Attorney General John Mitchell, looking back on his role in the Watergate scandal had just told the senators he would behave differently if he had it to do over again.

Eyebrows jiggling, Ervin leaned over and whispered to Baker that Mitchell's remark reminded him of a girl down in North Carolina who had been "dishonored" by a rich man. The girl's father, brandishing a rifle, confronted the rich man.

"You have dishonored my daughter," said the angry father.

"But I am a rich man," said the accused. He promised to pay for his promiscuity - - $15,000 for a baby boy, $10,000 for a girl.

"What if my daughter has a miscarriage?" demanded the father. "Will you give her another chance?"

ALIENATION OF GURNEY: President Nixon may have lost his strongest supporter on the Senate Watergate Committee by forcing a constitutional confrontation over the White House tapes.

Shortly before the historic showdown, Gurney discussed the issue with an aide who kept minutes of the conversation. The Senator said he thought it was essential that "the committee know those facts that pertain to Watergate."

He thought it should be permissible, he suggested, for the President to remove "security or extraneous matters" from the tape, but the main conversation must be made available.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Call it a moderately disastrous Broadway theater season, some estimable plays, one definitely exciting musical, one which cost $1,200,000 with nothing daring in it except its cost, leaving Bdw. with more than 25 empty theaters and about a dozen shows to sweat out the summer. For visitors, from Westchester, Long Island New Jersey, Maine, Kentucky, Georgia, California — even Athens, Greece, all places where this column reaches and many more, the summer is a great time to attend the Broadway theater.

It's not like the old days when the Brothers Shubert chilled the great theaters with a few cubes of ice and electric fans blowing their cool over the arriving theatergoers for some of the opening act, then abandoning the hordes to discomfort. Today all theaters operating have fine air conditioning, finally following the lead of the movie industry which early realized its obligations to the paying clientele's comfort. It's even a brand new, improved and progressive Shubert Organization, conscious of the competition of films and TV and anxious to lure the customers back into their many seats.

Broadway isn't nearly so menacing since the police and midtown business interests combined to make the area safer; it is. We wouldn't suggest traipsing its environs at one or two a.m. nor to get nosy about Eighth Avenue's pornography and massage joint economy which directs its menace best — meaning worst — in the after-midnight dark. But Broadway may be encompassed with safety again. And attending the theater also is easier these days wherein the vast hordes of regular New Yorkers who know the tricks of getting tickets to the new and sellout shows are off to the beaches the mountains and Europe, leaving the best theater seats to loyalists who can't afford scalpers.

Broadway has several fine dramas, each a prizewinner: "The Changing Room," somewhat of a controversial production because, set in a seedy men's locker room of a Northern England football stadium, it seeks and finds a somewhat sensational verisimilitude by presenting the players in assorted specific scenes of nudity. Be warned. It's a splendid, thoughtfully strident drama with more mood and sympathetic understanding than plot, though there is enough of that to assemble a touching, poignant power to what only seems on the surface considerable ado about trivia; it's a microcosm of the lives, ambitions, hopes, dreams, disillusionments, frustrations, tragedies, degradations of men in crisis situations; written directed and performed with amazing depth and understanding stretching beyond the surface provincialism of a team in a seeming smalltime scene.

"That Championship Season" is a powerful drama also set in a provincial milieu, this time a Pennsylvania city (undoubtedly Scranton but several might suffice) on the reunion of a championship basketball team some 20 years after the event. It's well perceived, the cast all male, the language rough to the ultimate, the problems valid, the play itself well structured — in fact constructed in a tidily old fashioned way — and well worth the time of thoughtful playgoers with strong ears and stomachs.

"A Little Night Music" is a prizewinning new musical with lyrics and music by Stephen Sondheim (brilliant lyrics, brilliantly not-too-melodious music) and effective to brilliant performers: effective in every role, the brilliant headed by Hermoine Gingold in the richest role of her considerable career.

"Seesaw" is the $1,200,000 musical which valiantly is trying to prevail; as we two-fingered off to press the battle was doubtful; old Bdw.

analysts of money-possibilities insist it's already lost. But it has a score by Dorothy Fields and Cy Coleman, Miss Fields one of the great lyricists of all tune-show time, Cy Coleman newer but assured and always professional. So confident was Miss Fields in its chances that in the pre-Bdwy tryouts when chaos descended and doom loomed, that she invested $30,000 of her own fortune — and hasn't taken any royalties, nor has Cy Coleman who also donated $10,000 to the financially questionable cause.

Getting beat

By Jean Adams

TOUGH: (Q.) These boys think they are really tough. They are big and think they can boss everybody around just because they are good in sports.

I am not big like they are. They always pick on me. If I try to talk to one of their girl friends they beat me up. This bunch of girls likes them, but they don't know they smoke grass.

What should I do?

Picked On in Indiana

(A.) Leave these boys and their girl friends alone. Then they will have no reason to pick on you. You can find other girls to talk to.

This does not mean that I approve either of "toughs" or girls who hang around with them. It is just that I get no indications from your letter that this group of boys interferes with you except when you interfere with them.

If you know (not just suspect) that they are doing anything illegal, talk to your parents about them. They may want to notify the authorities.

In the meantime keep clear of the boys and keep out of trouble.

THE MOST: (Q.) I really love Mary Jane. She's the most beautiful girl I ever saw. I want her to love me. But I just know she despises me because she is 14 and I am only 12.

Please don't tell me there are other fish in the sea — all 12 years old. I won't ever find another girl like Mary Jane. How can I get her to love me?

Troubled Lover in Connecticut

(A.) Mary Jane IS a little old for you, but you are being needlessly negative on what to me seems insufficient evidence.

For the time being, set your goal at making a friend out of Mary Jane. That should be possible. In a few years, you might graduate into being her boy friend.

The important thing now is to become her friend.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

I guess everybody felt as if they had had "a nice long day in the country" after the weekend of perfect summer weather but they weren't necessarily ready to settle down with renewed vigor to the indoor chores that had to be done even though the weekend weather stretched happily on.

It's too bad there isn't some way to bottle, can or put in deep freeze the days that seem to pleasant to waste to release them some dull winter weekend when you had time to enjoy them.

One thing that reminds us that the end of summer is approaching is the announcement that the Charity Ball committee for the hospital ball has its tickets all ready for sale at the Antique Show this week.

So if you were wondering what you were going to do the weekend of Nov. 3 your problem is solved: the Chrysanthemum Ball. Members of the committee will be on hand all day Wednesday at the show and in the early hours Thursday and Friday.

Actually the idea isn't as far fetched as it might seem: football fans already have their tickets for key games, people planning to hold holiday parties are balancing weekends, program committees have already lined up the program for opening luncheons.

Meanwhile, what would you think of a national holiday to celebrate the second Battle of Bull Run? That would be Aug. 9.

Lawn, bake sale for La Leche League library

Lions share old memories

TANNERSVILLE — Remember when a trip from Appenzell to Stroudsburg meant rising early, hitching up the horse and carriage and spending a day on the road?

Mrs. Emory Anglemire does, and shared some of her reminiscences with members of the Tannersville Lions Club when she was the guest of honor at one of the series honoring old-timers of the area.

She was born Emma Miller 83 years ago to Mr. and Mrs. Levi Miller in the area now Raders Lake. The lake was built about 70 years ago after her parents sold their home and moved to the Appenzell Store (now Wallingfords).

Recalling the day-long family trips to Stroudsburg, Mrs. Anglemire remembers that they used to shop awhile and then leave their purchases, unattended, in the lobby of the American House Hotel while they continued shopping. When they returned they would find their packages undisturbed.

She first went to school in a one-room school located at the corner of Route 715 and Mountain Road in Readers. Later she attended the one-room school which still stands next to the Lutheran Church in Appenzell. One of her classmates was Helen Singer Kresge who now lives in Stroudsburg.

After leaving school, she worked at what is now the Penn Stroud Hilton, and later at the Summit House in Swiftwater. It was at the Summit House that she met her future husband, who was driving a carriage to take boarders on sightseeing tours.

He and Emma were married in 1912 and set up housekeeping in Stroudsburg. Emory worked at the Stroudsburg Brewery on Second St., hauling beer and soda with horse and wagon. After about four years they built their home in Appenzell.

Her husband worked for a few years on the old Wilkes-Barre and Easton Railroad but his real love was working with his hands. He ran a sawmill next to his home, and the fine furniture he built is found today in the homes of Mrs. Anglemire and their children.

She recalls the days when her brother-in-law, Frank Felker, ran the stage and mail run between McMichaels and Stroudsburg.

She also remembers the day when her husband decided to teach her to drive, taking the car to the middle of a big field before she was allowed to take the wheel. As a matter of fact that big field is the only place she ever did drive since the lessons just didn't work out.

Her husband died about seven years ago and she now lives alone in a trailer next to her daughter's home.

There are six children: Olga Newhart, Appenzell; Wanda Sommers, Mountainhome; Lester Anglemire, Appenzell; Betty Leuber, Appenzell; Madlyn Reimel, Neola, and Joyce Hartshorn, Appenzell.

She also has 12 grandchildren, six great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren. Her brothers, Jake and Percy Miller, both live in Jackson Township, and her sister, Lucy Anglemire lives in Tannersville.

Pensions for mothers promised in France

PARIS (UPI) — The French mother who spends the best years of her life raising children and caring for her man can look forward to something more than wrinkles and rheumatism at old age. The government has promised retirement pensions for all mothers, whether married or not.

Acknowledging that women who hold no paying jobs but keep family and home together play a key role in French society, the government pledged to reward them in their old days with retirement pensions like those paid to blue or white collar workers.

"I will make sure that in the future, mothers will enjoy a true social status, and that they will get a pension," Public Health Minister Michel Poniatowski said over the weekend.

Health Ministry officials said draft legislation spelling out conditions under which a French mother will receive regular income from the State Pension Fund will go before Parliament for approval at the year's end.

"This is a pioneering move toward full equality between men and women," a Health Ministry official said. "France will be the first country anywhere to have such legislation."

The pensions will be paid only to mothers, whether married or not, who devoted themselves fully to family duties and had no regular money-earning work, officials said.

The measure will have to spell out at what age a woman will be entitled to a pension, considering her financial position.

"Now, my husband will no longer chide me that equality of sexes is all right, but he will be the one who keeps our household going when retirement age comes," said Mme. Nicole Clavier, 47, a Parisian housewife. "I have told him now I will have my own pension," she added, laughing.

Ann Landers

Known by all

Dear Ann Landers: This is about the divorcee who wrote, "I'm madly in love with a married man and he loves me — but he'll never leave his wife and children and I refuse to give him up." She didn't fool anyone by signing herself "Trifling In Tulsa." The tramp lives in Atlanta. I hope you print this. I'd hate for her to think she fooled you. —

His Wife

Dear Wife: Don't bet the rent, Lovey. Read on.

Dear Ann: The woman who signed her letter "Trifling In Tulsa" travels a little. But her home is in Miami, next door to mine. A few other facts were a little twisted, too. What a liar! —

Can't Love That Neighbor

Dear Ann Landers: Did you check the postmark on the envelope that came with the letter signed "Trifling In Tulsa"? If it doesn't say Fresno, I'll eat my shoes. —

Dear N.F.: I hope they aren't 4-inch platforms.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm surprised "Trifling In Tulsa" had the nerve to identify herself that way. She does, indeed, live in Tulsa. The least she could have done was substitute the name of another city in order to protect the identity of the man. Her letter was additional evidence that she has no prin-

SMITHFIELD TOWNSHIP SUPERVISORS

Dascoll's group argues that the government's acquisition agency, the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, hoodwinked private property owners out of $75,000 in property value for municipal roads.

Dascoll told TIRAC officials that a road constructed on private property is deeded to the municipality until it ceases to function as a municipal road. Under law, it then reverts back to private ownership, he said. Since roads in the federal project area no longer will have municipal usage, the adjoining property owners should have been paid for the acreage by the Army Engineers. Dascoll estimated some 15,000 acres of roads were obtained free of charge by the government.

Dascoll is also calling for creation of a seven-member civilian review board to monitor land acquisitions in the project area, saying the Army is currently "both judge and jury" in determining prices to be paid for acquired property, either through purchase or condemnation. Dascoll said he hopes to get thousands of signatures on the petitions.

Tangled water problems flood Portland council

PORTLAND — Straightening out a multitude of borough water problems dominated the discussion at the Portland Borough Council meeting Monday.

Two residents, one a borough councilman, complained that the borough had not lived up to its agreement for installation of a water drain on Coffin Avenue, running through their property.

The complaining councilman, Lewis Judy, used the example to point out the borough's overall lack of coordination in its water program.

"We signed an agreement," Judy argued. "If we as a council, lay out a project, we should carry it through as specified."

Judy's neighbor, John Wildrick, Jr., complained softly that "I'm disappointed to see that you agreed to one thing and are doing another."

Original plans for the drain called for a stone sluice along Coffin Avenue to take water to a dry run. However, borough workers have installed a pipe in the proposed ditch.

There is also a question whether the pipe is entirely on land acquired for the project.

From now on, borough engineer Richard Rutt said he would contact affected residents when a change was made in plans and work out an agreement.

Councilman Kenneth Rutt announced that a large problem existed on borough property on State Street — a large hole ten feet deep and ten feet wide appeared after the last heavy rain in the borough. "Next rain," Rutt predicted, "the whole bank will be gone."

"You mean it just caved in?" council president Wallace Stine asked. Rutt called it a huge "pothole" and said it was caused by building excavation on adjoining property weakening the bank.

Rutt said the property owner, Robert Lehman, has offered to take measures to protect the property. However, borough council was hesitant to grant him permission because of legal complications involved in building a retaining wall.

Moth chews 856,710 acres

JOHN L. MOORE
Ottawa News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Gypsy moth caterpillars defoliated 856,710 acres in Pike, Monroe, Wayne and Northampton Counties this year or more than half of the 856,710 acres defoliated across Pennsylvania.

Statewide, gypsy moth defoliation jumped by 113 per cent over last year when 404,060 acres were denuded, according to James Nichols, chief of the Environmental Department's Forest Pest Management Service.

Nichols added that the gypsy moth infestations may be waning in parts of Pike and Monroe Counties, and predicted that the problem may be less severe in the two counties next year.

Nichols previously had estimated that Pennsylvania's defoliation would go as high as one million acres. Nichols has also revised downward his prediction about 1974 defoliation. Six weeks ago, he said the state could have two million acres defoliated next year, but now believes "that probably 1.5 million acres will be defoliated."

Nichols' remarks were contained in a report released by the Department of Environmental Resources Monday afternoon.

The report showed that about one fourth of Pennsylvania's defoliation occurred in Pike County where the caterpillars stripped 233,760 acres this year as compared with 225,000 acres in 1972.

In Monroe County, defoliation jumped dramatically from 64,000 acres in 1972 to 172,640 acres this year.

Wayne County, which had no severe defoliation last year, had 15,000 acres tripped this year.

Northampton County was the only county in the state where defoliation figures for 1973 were smaller than in 1972. This year, 15,250 acres were stripped. Last year this figure was 18,670.

Pennsylvania has seen the gypsy moth problem mushroom since the late 1960s when gypsy moths spilled into the Poconos from New York and New Jersey.

Environmental officials found that caterpillar populations collapsed in parts of Pike, Monroe and Northampton Counties this summer because of the gypsy moth virus, a disease that kills the caterpillars.

This probably will see defoliation lessen in these counties next year.

Superior performers deliver play 'to love'

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
Family Fare Editor

MOUNTAINHOME — To the purist, there is nothing irregular, grammatically speaking, about the verb "to love."

But to the audience at the Pocono Playhouse last night, there was nothing regular at all about the variations on the theme of love which faced Hedda Rankin as she was released from prison.

Mrs. Rankin played superbly by Celeste Holm, faced first of all her love of animals which put her in jail in the first place.

Second came her son's (played by Brian Farrell,) version of love as an "association" with a little Greek girl who spoke no English.

The third kind of love was her daughter's determination to be an unwed mother. Daughter Lucy was played by Sherri Throop.

Not to mention her husband's bombshell delivered

STROUDSBURG — Striking liquid waste haulers don't expect promises of assistance from the three Monroe County Commissioners will help them in their search for a legal dumping ground.

Commissioners pledged Monday to explore all possible avenues open to haulers who empty septic and holding tanks throughout the county.

Nine of the ten haulers within Monroe County began striking at midnight Sunday. They say they will not pump sewage from any septic or holding tank until commissioners or the state Department of Environmental Resources finds them a place for legally dumping the wastes.

"I don't think they (commissioners) are going to be very much help to us," said hauler spokesman William Halterman.

"The only solution they could even suggest for us was for us to haul the stuff to Scranton," said hauler Barry Nauman after echoing Halterman's comments.

"That's a 100 mile trip. Do they realize how much the price will have to go up if we have to truck the wastes to Scranton and back?" said Nauman. He was arrested recently for illegally dumping sludge in Coolbaugh Township.

Halterman said transporting wastes to the Scranton municipal plant as suggested by Commissioners Chairman Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis would raise the average cost of a load to about $100.

Under rates in effect before the strike, a load of sewage from a septic or holding tank would cost landowners $45-$60.

Using the Scranton facility was the only concrete suggestion commissioners gave haulers.

They told the six haulers at their meeting they inquired at Pocono International Raceway, Pleasant Valley Manor and a landfill in Northampton County besides the Scranton treatment plant.

Operators of the others said they couldn't legally take the wastes.

Reasons varied from the treatment plant at the raceway was still under construction to Pleasant Valley Manor's plant won't handle the added load from hauler's waste tanks.

The Perrin Landfill in Northampton County has applied for a permit from DER for dumping liquid wastes according to Mrs. Shukaitis, but no approval has been granted by the state agency.

When commissioners asked about using Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg sewage treatment plants, haulers explained East Stroudsburg is working at capacity and Stroudsburg's will allow only one hauler dumping privileges.

Commissioner William Quinn attacked Stroudsburg officials for limiting who can use their plant.

"What's the matter with Stroudsburg," Quinn exclaimed. "If Scranton can handle their wastes and Stroudsburg lets one guy dump there, why can't they let the others?"

Quinn said he didn't know why haulers couldn't dump at the Stroudsburg facility at least until another solution is found.

Halterman says the solution should be a relaxing of rules by DER.

He said haulers spread wastes on fields throughout the county for years until DER recently started cracking down on violators.

What the issued boils down to, according to Halterman, is DER is forcing municipalities into building sewage treatment systems.

Federal fund freeze widens housing gap

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's continuing housing shortage is due to a lack of federal funding for subsidized housing, according to Charles T. VanSciver, executive director of the Housing Authority of Monroe County.

In a letter to county commissioners Monday, VanSciver blamed the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the shortage.

He said the county had approval for 100 elderly units and 80 units for rehabilitation housing but the moratorium on funding by President Nixon cut off all funds for the projects.

And if the county seeks money for the projects in the future, new applications for the previously approved projects will have to be made, he said.

VanSciver's letter to commissioners came after they issued an appeal for housing in the county, citing cases where families couldn't locate adequate lodging.

He said efforts by the local housing authority were notable but hadn't worked out due to financing difficulty.

VanSciver reported on a tour of government surplus lands at Tobyhanna Army Depot July 26.

The terrain he observed seemed level and would, in his opinion after visual observation be suitable for a housing project.

But after referring the Tobyhanna sites to the Health Education and Welfare office in Philadelphia for comment, he said he was told HEW could not assist the authority in any way.

Monroe pushes for tax law

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners will go on record August 14 supporting the Pennsylvania Farmland Assessment Act during a hearing in Honesdale.

In an unofficial statement released Monday, commissioners urged the House Agricultural and Dairy Industries Committee to consider the fact every county in the state voted for amending the state's constitution on special tax privileges for agricultural land.

They also urged the committee to opt for passing House Bill 1056 rather than H.B. 1215.

Commissioners would rather see H.B. 1056 adopted because it would leave administration up to the counties, not the state. They also prefer the 10-year roll-back provision for taxes in H.B. 1056 and the 10-year covenant for agricultural land.

In other business during their Monday meeting, commissioners: Received a letter from William Richardson, vice president of Pennsylvania Motor Trucking Assn. He said truckers using Interstate 80 were being polled whether or not they will use I-84 when completed as an alternative route instead of U. S. 209 through the Poconos.

Approved Liquid Fuels application for Coolbaugh and Polk Townships, for $4,388 and $7,176, respectively.

Renewed medical assistance Program Skilled Program Nursing Home Care Agreement between Pleasant Valley Manor and Department of Public Welfare.

A report of the August 3 jail inspection with the Department of Labor and Industry, Sheriff Forrest Sebring, commissioners and RKR Associates will be made soon, Commissioners Chairman Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis announced.

She also said the county had received the 1973 catalog of federal domestic assistance, a listing of all available federal funds.

Paradise plans questioned

Police, trash vote okayed

By GARY BARANIK
Pocono Record Reporter

SWIFTWATER — Paradise Township residents will vote on a referendum this November asking if they want a township police force and a township refuse collection pickup.

The township supervisors Monday night directed their solicitor Atty. George Royle to draw up the two referendums for the fall ballot.

Supervisor W. Jack Kalins said the township tax rate will be increased nine mills if both are accepted — five on the police and four on the refuse.

He said the supervisors are planning a tentative budget of $40,000 for the police with three policemen and one squad car.

Kalins said refuse will be taken over by the township and not by each individual as is presently the case.

The supervisors said they are negotiating to purchase two parcels of land near the Paradise Community Center in the central part of the township for a new municipal building.

Chairman Everett Ross is hopeful the building will house maintenance trucks, police headquarters, a fire house and an ambulance corps.

Funding for the new building will be provided from the township's federal revenue sharing funds.

In other business, Bill Hopkins of the Edward Hess Associates will meet with both the supervisors and the township planning and zoning commission in a special meeting Aug. 20 for a preliminary comprehensive study on a township sewerage plan.

Supervisors will act on the recommendations of Hess, their engineering firm. Kalins noted at least three commercial firms in the township have been refused sewerage permits for expansion.

Kalins said the township has received $5,500 from the federal government for reimbursement from the destruction caused by the June 29 flooding in the township.

Paradise Stream caused major damage to Cascade Road and Devil's Hole Creek brought havoc to the Koerners intersection.

Kalins represented the supervisors in a July 22 meeting in Honesdale on flood funds. He said Paradise Township was the only township in the county to receive such funds.

Dick Kice, an area resident, presented a petition to the supervisors for the lowering of speed limits from 55 miles per hour to 35 miles per hour at Rte. 940 at the Community Center to Rte. 191 in Henryville.

Kalins said a similar request was made two years ago but the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation turned down the supervisors after a study.

Residents said the area is not patrolled by the state police. The supervisors will contact the state police to set up radar in the area specified by Kice.

Meeting on tap

SWIFTWATER — The Board of Directors for the Pocono Mountain School District will meet in regular session at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Junior-Senior High School, Swiftwater.

Coolbaugh law controls sewage

TOBYHANNA — Coolbaugh Township supervisors unanimously adopted a holding tank ordinance Monday night.

The ordinance, which has been accepted by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER), will become effective Aug. 11.

The purpose of the ordinance is for use and maintenance of holding tanks designed to receive and retain sewage from residential and commercial uses.

The ordinance was enacted for the "protection, benefit, and health and welfare of the township's residents."

The supervisory board will be responsible for the control and methods of the holding tank sewage, disposal, collection and transportation and will be responsible for the ordinance's enforcement.

The ordinance stipulates that no personal owner can install a holding tank without a permit indicating the site and specification of the tank(s). All plans must strictly comply with all provisions of the ordinance.

A fee of $25 per permit is imposed.

All holding tanks must be airtight receptacles with a minimum of 1,000 gallons capacity and be designed to receive and retain sewage.

The tanks must be constructed of concrete or steel to facilitate ultimate disposal of the sewage approved by the DER.

Violators will be subject to a fine of $300 plus costs or imprisonment not to exceed 10 days.

In other business, the supervisors approved two bids from Shiffer Bituminous Co. of Stroudsburg for repaving township roads and to build a road in a section of Pocono Summit that is within the township.

Tobyhanna supervisors 'rap' with taxpayers

POCONO PINES — Faced with a business-free agenda, the Tobyhanna Township Supervisors Monday night turned their meeting into a question and answer session with interested township residents.

Approximately a half dozen residents who attended the meeting asked questions relating to progress on a solid waste transfer station, the purchase of a recreation park, and action to control gypsy moths.

The supervisors expressed concern over the transfer station, to be built by Pocotran, because of a lack of negotiations.

The supervisors went on record last December as favoring a transfer station for the township, but no papers finalizing the construction have been signed.

Regarding the park purchase, the supervisors said they are awaiting approval from the Department of Community Affairs. The township presently holds a three-year lease on the property in Pocono Pines.

Residents who expressed concern over the gypsy moth problem were promised township participation in some sort of program next year.

As yet, the supervisors haven't been contacted by any county official concerning future controlling methods against the gypsy moth.

Tigers overcome N.Y. lead; win on miscues in 10th

DETROIT (UPI) — Sparky Lyle threw the ball away for a two-base error and then Aurelio Rodriguez alertly raced home when a routine lob toss to the plate escaped catcher Thurman Munson to score the winning run in the 10th inning Monday night and give the Detroit Tigers a nationally-televised 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

Rodriguez led off the 10th with a sharp line single to left-center and Eddie Brinkman laid down a sacrifice bunt in front of the plate which the New York relief ace picked up cleanly. He looked to second and then made a soft toss to first which clearly was going to be too late to catch Brinkman. First baseman Matty Alou never touched the low throw and it skipped into the right field corner near the bullpen where Felipe Alou picked it up. But his throw to Munson also was soft and low and skipped by him up the third base line. Rodriguez was standing on third, saw no Yankee around him and Munson scrambling for the ball and broke for the plate to slide in under Munson's too-late toss.

Frank Howard pinch hit a two-run home run for the Tigers with two out in the ninth which capped a three-run rally that tied the game at 4-4.

Mets come from behind to roll past Cards, 10-3

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Milner's run-scoring double on a liner Bernie Carbo misjudged and Wayne Garrett's two-run single highlighted a three-run seventh inning rally Monday night as the New York Mets came from behind to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-3.

The liner Carbo misjudged was one of four balls the Cardinals misplayed in the sixth and seventh innings and, although none of them were officially charged as errors, they paved the way for Reggie Cleveland's defeat.

The mistakes started with one of four balls the Cardinals misplayed in the sixth and seventh innings and, although none of them were officially charged as errors, they paved the way for Reggie Cleveland's defeat.

one out in the sixth when Mike Tyson, who committed back-to-back errors on grounders in the fourth inning, ran into Ted Sizemore as he was fielding Garrett's grounder. Garrett was credited with a single and went to second on Jerry Grote's single. With two outs, pinch-hitter Ken Boswell lifted a blooper to right-center. Sizemore overran the ball and then dived but it fell in for a run-scoring single.

The sports notebook

By JOE MIEGOC
Record Sports WriterI'll take
Billie Jean

You read correctly. It is my opinion that Billie Jean King will soundly trounce loudmouth Bobby Riggs when the two clash Sept. 20 in the Astrodome in their $100,000 winner-takes-all tennis match.

Why? Well, the truth of the matter is simple: Billie Jean King is the better tennis player. Granted, Riggs is a better hustler, but Billie Jean is the better player and that's more important here. The best-three-of-five sets arrangement gives the younger and better-conditioned King the advantage over the 56-year-old Riggs.

Just think of it, guys: The Libber is going to stomp hell out of the "Lip," which is a better name for Riggs than his given surname. But it's going to be a welcome victory here, because maybe then we'll be rid of this guy who thinks he can out-psyche anyone.

Maybe he's met his match this time. The fact is he psyched Margaret Court Smith right off the court when they met on Mothers' Day. But Billie Jean King is probably "un-psycheable," so that won't work this time.

Seeing Billie Jean King getting psyched out of this match is about as realistic as seeing Wilt Chamberlain lead the National Basketball Assn. in free throw shooting next season: it just won't happen.

Soon after the match was announced, everyone started looking for patsies who would take Billie Jean over Riggs for a few bucks. Now the shoe is on the other foot; you can't get anyone to take Riggs to win.

Anyway, I doubt when Billie Jean wins the match she'll call it a victory for Women's Lib. Why? Well, she most certainly realizes that the only fair test in such a situation of man versus woman would be for the best from each side to meet. She's the best woman, but Riggs certainly is not the best man.

But let's get back to the King-Riggs massacre, since that's exactly what it will be. She's the better tennis player, that's all. I doubt very much that we'll see a pathetic performance from King similar to the one Mrs. Smith turned in last May.

Billie Jean King has won just about every tennis title the women have ever played for. She is the Wimbledon singles, doubles and mixed doubles champion. Now someone might say that Riggs also won a few titles at Wimbledon. But consider the competition; Riggs just didn't have as much then as there is today.

Time was when you could almost name who was going to win this or that tournament in almost any sport. Now things have changed. The younger breed of player has brought more competition to sports. They want to win earlier and thus are better prepared to do so.

That's why Billie Jean King will beat Bobby Riggs: She's better prepared than he is. She knows it will be a tough match, but Riggs thinks he has to psyche her to win. You know, he's probably right, because she is definitely better than he is.

As a matter of fact, she'll probably smoke him bad. I'd be surprised if the thing went longer than four sets. Riggs might win the first, but he certainly won't win the match or the dough. The truth is that Riggs can only win by psyching King into a horrible, nervous performance.

He's tried to do it, too. He's constantly talking about how she double-faulted three straight times at Wimbledon. So what? Jack Nicklaus doesn't win every golf tournament he enters, does he?

The winning edge will come through pressure. Billie Jean King has proved before that she can handle it. Mrs. Court had been away from tennis for a while before returning just a few months before the Riggs match, so maybe she couldn't re-adjust to the pressure of such a match.

But Billie Jean King can, and she will again. She says she's playing for a cause, but I think she'll first concern herself with beating Riggs as the guy across the net than she will with beating him because he's been talking the liberation movement down of late.

You know, the only thing about going out on a limb and taking Billie Jean to win is that once the match is over, you have to live with the one you chose. If she wins, you look like roses; if not, you look foolish.

But I think those who pick King to win will like the roses. After all, roses go well on any occasion, don't they?

Monte Irvin, two oldtimers also inducted

Spann, Clemente lead 'Hall' inductees

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Her composure shaken and her voice cracking under the strain, widowed Vera Clemente said Monday, "This is Roberto's last triumph" upon seeing her late husband enshrined in Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Clemente, Pittsburgh's always proud four-time batting champion who was killed at 38 in an airplane crash while on a mission of mercy last New Year's Eve, was one of six new inductees, bringing the total to 140 in baseball's rural shrine here.

Warren Spahn, a 363-game winner with the Boston Braves and Milwaukee Braves, and a pair of former New York Giant stars, Monte Irvin and George "High Pockets" Kelly, were the living members entering the Hall of Fame.

Two others now deceased, Mickey Welch, a 300-game winner from the past century, and Billy Evans, former American League umpire and later general manager for Cleveland and Detroit, also were inducted.

Bowie Kuhn, the baseball commissioner, presided over the ceremonies.

They were conducted outside the National Baseball Library in sweltering, near-90 degree heat and were marred when Spahn's brother-in-law, 55-year-old Lee Curran, of Buffalo, N.Y., pitched forward in his chair and suffered an apparent heart seizure.

The misfortune occurred while Spahn was speaking. Curran was removed to Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital here and there was word that he is expected to recover.

Spahn had been speaking less than two minutes when he noticed a sudden commotion less than 20 feet away from the platform on which he was speaking. Peering over the bank of microphones he gasped: "My God, it's my brother-in-law."

Visibly affected, Spahn, now a pitching coach with Cleveland, sought to go over to his brother-in-law but was restrained by Hall of Fame officials, who immediately summoned a rescue squad.

After Curran was removed on a stretcher, Spahn tried to continue speaking and nearly gave up. He pulled himself together, however, and with the ambulance siren echoing in the background, the 52-year-old onetime Braves' ace paid tribute to his wife, Lorene, his son, Gregory, and his father, Edward, all of whom were among the spectators.

Clemente was honored next. "Words are inaccurate to describe the greatness of Roberto Clemente," said Kuhn. He then called upon the former Pittsburgh outfielder's widow and Vera Clemente's eyes were already watering as she moved toward the microphone.

"This is Roberto's last triumph," she said, brokenly. "If he were here now, he would dedicate this honor to the people in Puerto Rico, to the people in Pittsburgh and to the people all over the United States."

Overcome with emotion, she could go on no longer.

Looking on in the audience were Clemente's 84-year-old mother, Mrs. Louisa Walker, and the former superstar's three small sons, Robertito, going on eight, Luis Roberto, 7, and Enrique, 4. Jose Torres, the former world light-heavyweight champion, represented the Governor of Puerto Rico at the ceremony attended by other visitors from Puerto Rico.

Clemente's Pittsburgh teammates also were among the spectators who saw him honored and after the induction they met the Texas Rangers in an exhibition on nearby Doubleday Field.

Kuhn was particularly lavish in his praise for the 54-year-old Irvin, who batted .458 for the Giants in the World Series and now is a member of the commissioner's staff.

"Never," said Kuhn in introducing the former Giant outfielder-first baseman, "has baseball produced a kinder, more decent, more beloved man, nor one who has meant more to me personally than Monte Irvin."

Among other Hall of Famers on hand for Monday's induction were Casey Stengel, Stan Musial, Satchel Paige, Waite Hoyt, Rube Marquard, Bill Terry, Joe Medwick, Hank Greenberg and Bob Feller. The two league presidents, Joe Cronin and Chub Feeney, also were present, as were Mrs. Babe Ruth and Mrs. Lou Gehrig.
